DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed on Claims 9 – 34 are pending. Claims 9 – 17 are withdrawn from consideration as being drawn to a nonelected invention.
2. The applicant's arguments are sufficient to overcome the 35 USC 103 rejection to the claims based on Pernick (5,735,145) in view of MacIntyre (3,575,776). As argued by the applicant (response, pages 10 – 12) it would not be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to add linking threads to the knit fabric disclosed by Pernick since adding linking threads would require the fabric to be knitted together in a completely different knit pattern than the one disclosed by Pernick. Further, MacIntyre disclose weaving together three woven layers to form the composite fabric. Therefore, MacIntyre does not teach using knit fabrics, but a woven fabrics instead. Hence, the disclosure would not teach one of ordinary skill in the art how to combine the spacer layer with the knit layers taught by Pernick.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. Claims 18 – 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.
4. The claims are indefinite since it is unclear if the applicant intends to positively claim the "air circulating means" or if the claimed fabric just needs to be able to operate with an "air circulating means"? In each of the independent claims the applicant recites that the "textile fabric article [is] operable with [an] air circulation means", then further recites the air circulating means communicates with the intermediate air space in the textile fabric. Additional claims recite limitations requiring the air circulating means to include an entrance coupling and an exit coupling, and a diffusion zone between the entrance and exit couplings. Therefore, it is unclear if the entrance and exit couplings and diffusion zone are actually a part of the air circulating means or a part of the textile fabric. Further, it is also unclear if the applicant is positively claiming the air circulating means and all the features claimed with respect to the air circulating means. Since the claim currently states that the fabric is “operable” with an air circulation this limitation is considered to only require that a textile fabric is capable of being used with an air circulating means. Thus, the limitations drawn to the air circulating means comprising an entrance and exit coupling and diffusion zone are not positive limitations either and the fabric only needs to be capable of being used with these structures. Should the applicant positively recite the air circulating means so that the features related to the air circulating means are positively recited then the claims would be allowable over the prior art. Since the phrase “operable with air circulation means” is in all the independent claims, claims 18 – 34 are rejected.

5. Claims 19 and 26 are indefinite since the claims recite that the textile fabric can be a garment, seat covering, bed covering, or a sleeping bag, while the independent claims they depend from limit the fabric to a garment which protects and encloses a portion of the human body. A seat covering, bed covering, and sleeping bags are not considered to be types of garments.

6. Claims 18 and 20 are indefinite since the claims do not appear to be complete sentences. Claim 18 ends with the word “said” which makes it appear that the claim is incomplete. Are these claims finished or is there more to the claim?
